AT REST.

"Uncle Phillip" Kelly's Kemains Consigned to Their Eternal Repose.

The funeral services over the remains of 'Uncle Phillip" Kelly took place at St. Vincent's cathedral this morning at 10 o'clock. The large church was crowded by a vast concourse of mourning friends, who had gathered to pay their last honor to the departed. Father Murphy conducted high mass and performed the beautiful rites of the Catholic church over the remains. After mass, Father Murphy delivered a powerful sermon. His deep, rich, sonorous voice filing the vast auditorium with touching remarks to the living and glowing tributes to the dead. He paid !especcial praise to the charities of "Uncle Phillip" and the great good he had worked among the poor. He impressed upon his audience the necessity of noble manhood and virtuous character "where there is humanity," Mr. Murphy; said, "there is temp tation; where there is temptation there is sin; and where there is sin, there is trouble and deepest despair." He implored all, whether Catholic or Protestant, to look upon the body of their dead comrade and murmur a prayer for the repose of his soul. Father Murphy's eloquence and earnest, impassionate address, together with his high elocutionary powers, rendered the sermon one of the deepest interest, and a deathlike stillness fell upon the audience. The solemn music that issued from the gallery filled the vast cathedral aisles with symphonies soft and dim-a tender requiem oer the coffin of the dead.

At the close of the services at the church, the procession was formed and took up their march to the tomb. There has probatly never been a larger line of carriages and footmen at a funeral held in Sedalia. The following was the order:

Picturesque sights are to be seen daily at Castle Garden. A few days ago as the steerage passengers were being landed from the steamer Etruria, a tall, well built young man called at the Garden and told the gitekeeper that he wanted to meet a friend.

The young man said he came from Ireland three years ago. His father and mother were dead. He was poor. He loved a girl in Ireland named Lil lie Walsh. She was 15 years old and he was 20. He wanted to marry her, but she would not consent. Her father was dying of consumption, and she wou d not leave him. She promised to wait for him. He placed a wedding ring on her finger and sailed away. Two months ago she wrote to him that her fither was dead and she would sail on the Etruria,

Her hair was dark and concealed from view by a nest little bonnet which sat coquetshly on her head. Her dress was a neat blick silk, and set off her form to perfection.

The joy of the two young lovers at meeting was very touching, and drew tears to the eyes of Detective Peter

Taking her tenderly by the hand the young man, whom she called Tom, led her around to the rear of the police office. Here they embraced half a dozen times and lavished kisses upon one one her. They did not speak. Their eyes alone told the tale of their love and waiting. Placing her arms around his neck she gazed with long WM. GENTRY, and li gering fondness into his eyes, J. R. BARRETI, H. In the meantime I struggled under great pain. Life was burden. Two weeks ago I saw the Chicago "Times," and my eye fell on an advertisement of Tutt's Pills. I decided to try them. They have worked wonderfully. They keep me regular, don't make me sick, give me an appetite and are curing my piles. I am strong and can walk any distance.
